From the London Gazetteer, of May 30*th*, 1752.

The great Demand we had for Yeſterday's paper, on account of the following Verſes, we hope is a ſufficient Apology for republiſhing them, they being very proper for every married Man to preſent to his Wife and Daughters, and the Batchelors to their Miſtreſſes.

ADVICE to a YOUNG LADY lately Married.

By an unmarried LADY.

DEAR, Peggy, ſince the ſingle State
You've left, and choſe yourſelf a Mate;
Since you're amorth'd to a Wife,
And Hints or Woe's in ur'd for Life.
A friendly Muſe the Way would ſhew,
To gain the Bliſs, and miſs the Woe.
But firſt of all, I muſt ſuppoſe
You, with mature Reflection choſe;
And this premis'd, I think you may
Here find to married Bliſs the Way.
Small is the Province of a Wife,
And narrow is her Sphere in Life;
Within that ſphere to move aright
Should be her principal Delight;
To guide the Houſe with prudent Care;
And properly to ſpend and ſpare;
To make her Huſband bleſs the Day
He gave his Liberty away;
To form the tender infant Mind;
Theſe are the Taſks to Wives aſſign'd;
Then never think domeſtick Care
Beneath the Notice of the Fair;
But daily thoſe Affairs inſpect,
That nought be waſted by Neglect.
Be frugal Plenty round you ſeen,
And always keep the Golden Mean.
Be always clean, but ſeldom fine,
Let decent Neatneſs round you ſhine;
If once fair Decency be fled,
Love ſoon deſerts the genial Bed.
Not nice your Houſe, tho' neat and clean;
In all Things there's a proper Mean:
Some of our Sex miſtake in this,
Too anxious ſome, ſome too remiſs.
The early Days of wedded Life,
Are oft o'recaſt by childiſh Strife:
Then be it your peculiar Care,
To keep that Seaſon bright and fair;
For then's the Time by gentle Art
To fix your Empire in his Heart,
With kind, obliging Carriage ſtrive
To keep the Lamp of Love alive;
For ſhould it thro' Neglect expire,
No Art again can light the Fire.
To charm his Reaſon dreſs your Mind;
Till Love ſhall be with Friendſhip join'd;
Rais'd on that Baſis, 'twill endure,
From Time and Death itſelf ſecure.
Be ſure you ne'er for Power contend,
Nor try by Tears to gain your End;
Sometimes the Tears which cloud our Eyes,
From Pride and Obſtinacy riſe.
Heav'n gave to Man ſuperior ſway,
Then Heav'n and him at once obey.
Let ſullen Frowns your Brow ne'er cloud;
Be always chearful, never loud;
Let trifles never diſcompoſe
Your Features, Temper, or Repoſe.
Abroad for Happineſs ne'er roam;
True Happineſs reſides at Home;
Still make your Partner eaſy there,
(Man finds Abroad ſufficient Care)
If every thing at Home be right,
He'll always enter with Delight;
Your Converſe he'll prefer to all
Thoſe cheats the World does Pleaſure call,
With chearful Chat his Cares beguile,
And always meet him with a Smile.
Should Paſſion e're his Soul deform,
Serenely meet the burſting Storm;
Never in wordy War engage,
Nor ever meet his Rage with Rage.
With all our Sex's ſoftening Art
Recall loſt Reaſon to his Heart;
Thus calm the Tempeſt in his Breaſt,
And ſweetly ſooth his Soul to reſt.
Be ſure you ne're arraign his Senſes;
Few Huſbands pardon that Offence;
'Twill Diſcord raiſe, Diſguſt it breeds,
And Hatred certainly ſucceeds.
Then ſhun, O ſhun that fatal Shelf,
Still think him wiſer than yourſelf;
If you ſhould otherwiſe believe,
Ne're let him ſuch a Thought perceive.
When Cares invade your Partner's Heart,
Bear you a ſympathizing part,
And kindly claim your Share of Pain,
And half his Troubles ſtill ſuſtain;
From riſing Morn till ſetting Night,
To ſee him pleaſed your chief Delight.
But now, methinks, I hear you cry,
Shall ſhe pretend, O Vanity!
To lay down Rules for wedded Life,
Who never was herſelf a Wife?
I own you've ample Cauſe to chide,
And bluſhing throw my Pen aſide.

To the AUTHOR of the VERSES intitled, ADVICE to a YOUNG LADY lately Married.

MADAM,

I Take the liberty to addreſs you theſe few lines, to commend in the firſt place the excellent rules you have laid down for a wife, this being a tribute which cannot be denied you; and then, madam, humbly to requeſt you to compleat the work, at your next leiſure hour, by giving gentlemen a ſet of maxims and rules for their conduct, in order to make them better huſbands than they generally are.

It is evident from the hiſtory of all ages and nations, that the conduct of the fair ſex never was much exclaimed againſt, till the morals of the other ſex were exceſſively depraved. In our days both ſides do certainly ſtand in need of the beſt and moſt ſerious advice; and to begin with the men, is beginning at the right end. If honour and generoſity, tenderneſs tempered with reſolution, frugality and induſtry, and ſuch other virtues as dignify human nature, and contribute to the happineſs of ſociety, could once be brought into Faſhion among them, I dare ſay we ſhould hear of very few complaints againſt the ladies.

London

LONDON, January 16.

Since the curtain has been let down at Hanover writers have transported the scene of action into the Corſica, and pretend to foretel in their gazettes the of that little kingdom. The time, they ſay, is ar rived that it is going to change its government. Th eſe muſt ere now have laſt all hopes o recovering th tents under their dominion. The ſlanders then have a new maſter given them, one whoſe power odious to them than that of thoſe republicans, wh treated the people tyrannically. The infant D whoſe demeſnes are ſo ſmall and whoſe titles i cent, muſt for the honour of the branch from ſprung, and of that to which he is ſo nearly allie age, be decorated with a diadem: and if he ſhou king of Corſica, in the ſame manner as a king of S has been made, the ſceptre, the crown and the r tle, will give him an air of grandeur, which will comfort to him for the ſmall portion of territory that has made him, and will put him in ſome degree, upo with his elder brother, the title of majeſty has for it ſo glorious and ſo ſublime: On the other hand, ches of the houſe of Bourbon will be better ſatisfi they perceive, that by this augmentation of territo tant will be more at his eaſe, at leaſt for ſome tim thinking of enlarging the three little duchies which at preſent poſſeſſes, by ſome acquiſitons of terri upon the continent of Italy. This, perhaps likew be the moſt certain means of cauſing the famous projec ration to ſucceed. Theſe news writing politicians add, that it is unqueſtionably true, that France are at preſent treating with the republic of Ge ceſſion of the iſland of Corſica, in conſideration of an equivalent in money, and the Genoeſe now diſpairing ever to reduce the maleconteats to obedience cannot fail of reliſhing this propoſition.

Mr Timothy,

THE Age of the fortunate Man in your laſt,
Was juſt Sixty Years, Sir, and not a Day paſt;
The Lady's was Sixteen, if Algebra's true:
Your Problem is ſolved, and therefore Adieu.
And having unriddled your Declaration,
I ſubmit it to you for Confirmation.

The ſuppoſed Age of the Gentleman x Years.
of the Lady y Years.

$$x+y=76$$
$$x=76-y$$
$$\frac{x}{10}=\frac{3y}{8}$$
$$x=\frac{30y}{8}$$
$$\frac{30y}{8}=76-y$$
$$30y=608-8y$$
$$38y=608$$
$$y=\frac{608}{38}=16 \text{ the Lady's Age,}$$

Therefore $x=76-16=60$ the Gentleman's Age.

A PROBLEM.

A Country Spark, addreſſing charming She,
In whom all lovely Features did agree,
Do like a Britiſh Clown demand her Age,
Which put the charming Fair one in a Rage;
She made this Anſwer with a gen'rous Air,
(A lofty Charm peculiar to the Fair);
My Age is that, which multiply'd by Three,
One Seventh of that Product trebled be,
The ſquare Root of Three Fourths of that is Four;
So fare you well, I ſhall not ſee you more:
Your fond Impertinence has caus'd this Rage,
It's clowniſh ſure, to aſk a Woman's Age:
So pray aſſiſt him, or it may per Chance
The Spark may ſtill remain in Ignorance.

THE Subscriber intending to move from Ashley-Ferry, will sell the house and lot, with part of a lot he now lives on; it is very conveniently situated for a store, where one has been kept for these six years past, and is bluff on a fine navigable river, that a ship of 300 tons may take her load within 40 yards of the door. Any person inclinable to purchase, may have credit 'till the first of January next, without interest.

He will also sell his tan yard at Ashley-Ferry, consisting of two lots of ground, with a dwelling house and tan house thereon, about 30 tan vats, four lime pits, handlers, &c. &c. &c. Also the stock of leather in tanning, and about 40 cords of new bark. Any person inclinable to purchase, may have credit 'till the first of January next, with interest and security if required. GEORGE BELLINGER.

N.B. Inventories may be seen at the said tan-yard; my tanners, curriers and shoemakers, I shall not sell, on account of their families, but if the purchaser of the tan-yard should want them, and we can agree, will hire them to him.

BROUGHT to the Work-House.

A small yellowish coloured new negro, with white negro cloth jacket on, and can't tell his masters name.

NOTICE is hereby given to all Captains of vessels, builders, carpenters and others, that for the future they presume not to ground, heave down or repair any vessel or vessels on the low water lot of the honourable John Colleton, Esq; or lay any ships or vessels alongside of the Dutch ship now lying on the premises, to the injury of the subscriber; as they may expect prosecution for every such offence. JOSEPH BAIRD.

TO BE SOLD, a Piece of high Land on White-Point, adjoining Mr. John Savage. Any person inclined to purchase the same may treat with JOHN BALLANTINE.

TO BE LET by the Subscriber, the two following plantations, one on Ashley River, 3 miles from Charles-Town, containing acres, with a good dwelling house thereon, having 4 rooms a floor, and several other handsome and convenient buildings (amongst them a brick kitchen & store, situate on each side the dwelling-house, a large brick building above 60 feet by 30, consisting of a handsome green house, coach-house, stable and several other rooms) two sets of brick indico vats: the other upon Wappoo Creek, 6 miles from Charles Town, containing 193 acres and an half of choice land. Both plantations were under good fences before the late hurricane, and the fencing lies as it was blown down; no water came near any of the buildings, in the said hurricane.

RICHARD LAKE.

WILLIAM RATCLIEF, Overseer at the plantation of James Wright, Esq; on Ashley-River, informed me that the following creatures, have broke into the inclosed ground of the said plantation, viz. a flea bitten mare with a hanging mane, a twitch tail, about 13 hands high, branded on the mounting shoulder thus IU: A black gelding about 13 hands high, a small star in his forehead, a white ring just above his off hind foot, a long switch tail and hanging mane, branded on the mounting shoulder ME one, on the off shoulder thus : : The owner of the said creatures, or either of them, may apply to ALEXANDER STEWART, Jr.

THIS is to give Notice, that JOHN EWING lately arrived from Scotland keeps a tavern and stable, and also sells rum and sugar, up the Path, about a quarter of a mile from [illegible] at the sign of the Bear, where all persons who are pleased to favour him with their custom, may depend upon being well served by him, for account of Robert Rawlins.

N.B. Said Rawlins takes in writing at the said house, transacts business in town for his customers, or others having occasion to apply to him as a scrivener. Such persons as are pleas'd to employ him, may depend upon his sincerity and quickest dispatch.

ALL the Creditors of Bartholomew Bate, whose debts were contracted before the 10th of February 1752, are desired to bring in the amount of their demands by the first of August next, to William Burrows attorney at law, or to the executors.

George Ball, Robert McKelvey.

A Sorrel horse with one eye, switch tail, branded on the mounting buttock LB in one, and has on his neck a horse bell: Also one bay horse, a small white spot on his forehead, branded on the mounting shoulder H, a part of which forms a Flower de Luce, has on his neck a horse bell. SUPPLEMENT To THE South-Carolina GAZETTE.

May 14th, 1753. [NUMB. 987.]

From the Pennſylvania Gazette of January 16.

THE learned Borelli, ſays life does not abſolutely conſiſt in ſenſible motion, but may remain in the body for ſome time after that has ceaſed. This opinion ſeems to be confirmed by philoſophical experiments, for Dr. Croon, in the preſence of the royal ſociety, ſuffocated a pullet, and after it had loſt all appearance of life, he blew into its wind-pipe, and it was thereby perfectly recovered. Dr. Needham, in the preſence of Mr. Boyle, hung a dog, and let him remain hanging until the heart entirely loſt its motion; he then opened him, and with a ſmall pipe blew into piquet's ciſtern upon which the heart recovered its motion, and the animal, which before appeared to be dead, revived.

'Tis farther confirmed by the hiſtories phyſicians have given us of perſons who have lain motionleſs, cold, and to appearance dead, for a conſiderable time, and have yet been revived, and lived many years; amongſt which the following is very remarkable:

James Sinclair, was ſuffocated by the pernicious ſteam ariſing from coals ſet on fire in a pit, and fell down as dead; he lay in the pit between half an hour and three quarters, and was then dragg'd up; his eyes ſtaring and open, his mouth gaping wide, his ſkin cold, not the leaſt pulſe in either heart or arteries, nor the leaſt breathing to be obſerved. Mr. Veſſalius, a ſurgeon, of Alloa, in Scotland, applied his mouth cloſe to the patient's, and by blowing ſtrongly, holding the noſtrils at the ſame time, raiſed his cheſt fully by his breath. He immediately felt ſix or ſeven beats of the heart, the thorax continued to play, and the pulſe ſoon after felt in the arteries. He then opened a vein in his arm, which after giving a ſmall jet, ſent out the blood in drops only for a quarter of an hour, and then he bled freely; in the mean time he cauſed him to be pulled, puſhed, and rubbed, as much as he could. In one hour the patient began to come to himſelf: Within four hours he walked home; and in as many days returned to his work. This ſtory was firſt publiſhed in the Edinburgh medical eſſays, and republiſhed in the philoſophical tranſactions, by Dr. Fothergill. The doctor, in his remarks on it, ſays, this manner of inflating the lungs, would probably ſucceed in a great number of accidents, and might be of ſervice in ſome diſeaſes.

The powerful effect of this operation on an animal body is demonſtrated, by its ſucceſs in the above caſe, and likewiſe by an experiment of the accurate Dr. Hale's, related in his chapter on the analyſis of the air; in which it appeared, that when the pulſe of the dog he was trying it on, was ſo weak and low, that he would certainly have died in a minute, and the common reſpiration of freſh air made no change in him, the animal was conſtantly revived, and the pulſe raiſed and quickened when ever the air was driven into the lungs with great force.

The ſecond hiſtory is that of a gardiner, of Torringholm, who attempting to ſave a perſon that had fallen under the ice, fell in himſelf, and continued a great depth under the water for ſixteen hours; a drag was then ſtruck into his head, whereby he was drawn out; he was cold, and, to appearance, dead, but from a common perſuaſion of thoſe people that he might recover, he was wrapped up in blankets, ſtroaked, rubbed, and air blown up his noſtrils for ſeveral hours, till the blood began to move; they then gave him cordial medicines, and he recovered perfectly. He ſaid, that as ſoon as he was under the water his mouth ſeemed to be covered with a bladder, and he believed all the water he received went in at his ears; that he ſoon loſt the power of motion, and was afterwards ſenſible of nothing but the ſound of the bells of Stockholm. Pechlin publiſhed the hiſtory while the man was living, and eighteen years after the accident: He ſays, it being atteſted by the oaths of eye-witneſſes, induced the queen to give him an annual penſion, and he was preſented to the prince, in order to give an account of what had happened to him. Tilafius, the keeper of the king's library, has likewiſe publiſhed all the circumſtances of it; and Seme, a learn'd phyſician of Paris, ſpeaks of it in the Corps par les nouvelles Hiſtoires que le bruit populaire ait porté juſqu'a nous, elle a été atteſté par des temoins oculaires; that this hiſtory has not been brought to us by common report, but atteſted by eye-witneſſes. So many concurring teſtimonies, then, leave us no room to doubt the truth of this extraordinary affair.

The celebrated Dr. Mead, in his mechanical account of poiſons, after mentioning that many who have been drowned and dead to all appearance, have been ſurpriſingly recovered to life, ſays, "This ſhould certainly encourage the "uſe of all means upon ſuch accidents, eſpecially ſince the "trial is not difficult. The firſt ſtep ſhould be, to blow up "the ſmoke of tobacco into the inteſtines; then to warm the "body by ſhaking and rolling about, and rubbing it with "warm cloaths in bed. In a word, to put the blood into "motion by all manner of ways; and not to be diſcour-"ag'd, tho' no ſigns of life ſhould be diſcovered after an "hour or two ſpent in this good work; towards the latter "end of which, volatile ſpirits and ſalts may have a good "effect."

The warm irritating fumes of tobacco, are undoubtedly of great uſe in theſe caſes, but would be more efficacious with the conjoint aſſiſtance of the method practiſed on the Torringholm gardiner. The inflation of the lungs ſhould be frequently repeated, and not continued long at a time, and if the cheſt and belly do not ſubſide, immediately after the operation, an aſſiſtant muſt force the air back again, by preſſing with his hands a little below the pit of the ſtomach; by which means an artificial breathing, ſimilar to a natural one, will be perform'd, and the veſſels of the lungs, which in a collapſed ſtate are contracted, and require great force, to make any things paſs thro' them, will be dilated, ſo as to make no reſiſtance to the blood when put in motion by the feebleſt efforts of the heart."
